

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and system for exchanging information over a communications network are described. According to one embodiment, an exemplary method of the invention includes connecting two or more clients to a proxy over the communications network, activating a shared session between the clients, and enabling co-navigation of one or more web documents with dynamic content by the clients during the shared session.

007707-00560300